

Hello!

Let us introduce ourselves.

We are What Took You So Long?

We are a global creative agency consisting of award-winning cinematographers, drone/underwater operators, scriptwriters, live-stream experts, positive storytelling advocates, 360/VR camera operators, regionally specialized producers, and more. Most importantly, we are all passionate about the ethical implications of what we produce. As part of WTYSL, we are looking to expand our field of work from static documentaries into the interactive world. The stories that we work on are conscious, socially-responsible & inclusive (just like our team!).

Together with PSI, we are creating an interactive platform to showcase the importance of public healthcare through real stories of front-line health workers from across the globe and the problems with healthcare privatization. medium/senior Front-end developer with high knowledge on animations (GSAP, Anime.js, WebGL) together with a professional set of good practices and high proficiency on performance.

Tasks would include: Planning, defining and developing the App main components and pages. Focus on adaptability and application of responsive principles, optimizing components for maximum performance across devices and browsers. Translate pixel perfect prototypes coming from UX/UI team into high quality code. Proficiency in web animations with a strong focus on good performance. Communicating with back-end, making sure information coming from APIs is correctly displayed on front-end.

Our project crew currently consists of:

1 x project manager / Scrum master
Content team: Two dedicated directors and a global network of DOPs and cinematographers.
2 x junior full-stack developers
1 x product owner / user experience designer
1 x user interaction designer

Deadline: The project's prototype should be delivered by 31 December 2020, while the full product should be delivered by June 2020, the latest.

Budget: To be discussed based on experience.